Introduction

On behalf of GeoExchange BC please join us at the 2007 2nd Biennial International Geo Exchange Conference at the Hilton Vancouver Metrotown, in Burnaby, British Columbia, Canada March 7-9, 2007.

Following the extremely successful conference held in 2005, we saw the benefit to the industry that an event of this nature provides towards building key contacts and relationships for the betterment of the industry as a whole. It will allow all sectors of the GeoExchange industry to join together at one venue to share thoughts and ideas. This cooperation has already occurred between GeoExchange BC, and the Thermal Environmental Comfort Association (TECA), who together have acknowledged the technology as a catalyst for cross-training the relative components of GeoExchange within their respective trades.

GeoExchange and the involved technology is entering an exciting time as it advances at a rapid pace and begins to be a benchmark within the design processes of commercial, industrial and residential building projects. All industry disciplines are united in their need to expand their expertise and can accomplish this through collaboration. This conference will provide the delegate's access to industry experts who will facilitate learning and inter-industry collaboration through their examples and experiences.

We are fortunate this year to have Mr. Tim Flannery as our Keynote Speaker. He is an internationally acclaimed scientist and author of The Weather Makers: How Man Is Changing the Climate and What It Means for Life on Earth which debuted on The New York Times best-seller list. He will share his thoughts and ideas on the impact global warming is having on the world's climate.

We look forward to seeing you in March 2007.

Stacey Bernier
Conference Chair
